BADEN No. 1

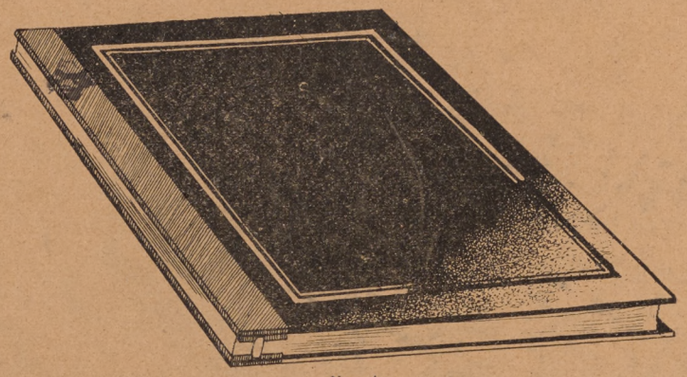

PRECINCT

SAN MATEO COUNTY

PATENT PROTECTED A CARLISLE & CO S F

Binding of Affidavits

As all affidavits are to be used at the precincts as references, they will necessarily receive more or less hard usage; hence they must be securely bound.

No. 1

We have lately invented a practically new binder. We have retained, however, the good features of the old binders, but have added late improvements.

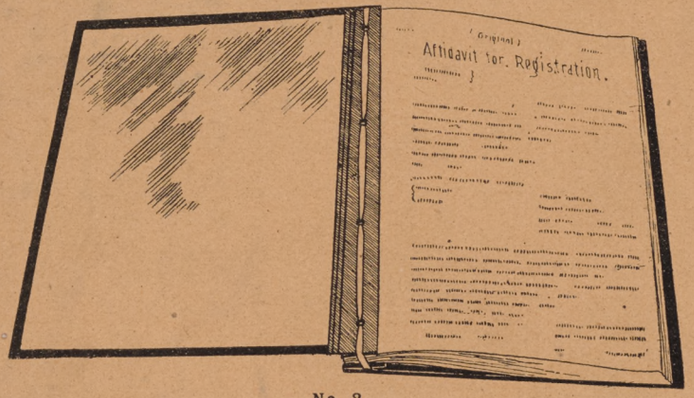

Picture No. 1 shows the binder to have a perfectly flat surface—no strings, staples or thumb screws on the outside to interfere with the handling of the binder in any way.

The binder has two flaps or extensions on leather hinges which fold inwardly. The linen lace runs in and out through the four holes in the affidavits and flaps of the binder. When this lace is tightly drawn, it fastens the affidavits securely together, making a continuous pressure from one end of the binder to the other. (See Picture No. 2). This pressure is particularly strong at the four places where the lace runs through the holes. No sheets or papers can possibly come out of the binder now, unless absolutely torn out, or removed by unlacing the linen string which binds them together. Sheets can be easily inserted or removed by taking out the lace.

This binder is very serviceable indeed. The covers are made of good first-class tarboard, substantially bound together with leather. The whole back and inside flaps are of leather as indicated by the small parallel lines in the picture.

The holes that are punched in affidavits, and the eyeleted holes in the inside flaps of the binder, register perfectly, for they are made by machinery.

When a bunch of affidavits is placed between the two covers of the binder you can easily see clear through the hole, and the linen lace with its pointed end can be run through with no difficulty.
